For the last 20 years, Boxed In has tracked women's representation in prime-time television. The project provides the most comprehensive historical record of